BREATHITT IN LANDSLIDE

Plurality Over 63,000 Votes Over The State

JOSEPH VARILLA
United Press International

LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Edward T. Breathitt Jr. left even his most ardent supporters stunned today with the magnitude of his victory over A. B. Chandler for the Democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky.

Pacing in his first try for statewide office the man many Kentuckians thought was unbeatable, the 38-year-old Hopkinsville attorney racked up a plurality exceeding 63,000 votes.

Returns from 2,712 of 3,017 precincts showed Breathitt with 304,000 to 240,800 for Chandler, two other candidates polled more than 20,000 votes.

Breathitt's victory was apparent within an hour and one-half after the last polling place closed. In counties which traditionally had been Chandler strongholds, he either won or narrowed Chandler's margin considerably. And in areas it was thought Breathitt would win, he built up even bigger pluralities than expected.

Making the victory even more surprising was that only about a year ago, Breathitt was a virtual unknown. Although he had served two terms in the state legislature and had served as personnel commissioner, his name was not familiar outside the state Capitol. Chandler, on the other hand, probably was the best known man in the state.

Wages Bitter Battle
When his announcement for the nomination brought the question "Who's he?" Breathitt had no place to go but up. And he went with a vigorous, hard-hitting campaign patterned after those waged by Chandler himself.

City Resident Passes Away Early Today

Mrs. Edd Prince, age 69, died this morning at 1:30 o'clock at the Murray Hospital following an extended illness.

She is survived by her husband, Edd Prince, 217 South 12th St.; six daughters, Mrs. Thad Ives, 201 South 15th; Mrs. Maynard Ball, Mrs. Jack Hands, Mrs. Paul Lyons, and Mrs. James Cavitt all of Lansing, Michigan and Mrs. Cecil Eigenbaum, Topeka, Kansas; one son, Dumas Prince, Lansing, Mich.; one sister, Mrs. Roscoe Hoffman, Paris, Tennessee; 13 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Prince was a member of the Memorial Baptist Church of Murray. Funeral services will be held at the Olive Branch Methodist Church near Cottage Grove, Tennessee. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Rev. T. A. Thacker will conduct the service Friday at 3:00 p. m. Friends may call at the Max Churchill Funeral Home until 1:00 p. m. Friday at which time the body will be removed to the church.

The Max Churchill Funeral Home has charge of the arrangements.

Legion Auxiliary Meets On Monday

The American Legion Auxiliary met Monday night in the Legion Hall with the president, Mrs. David Henry, presiding.

The subject of the devotion given by Mrs. A. G. Childress, Chaplain, was "Honoring and Remembering." Mrs. Childress brought out that a light would go out in America if Americans ceased to remember and honor their fallen defenders.

Mrs. Macon Erwin, Poppy Chairman, gave a report from the sale of poppies on Saturday and thanked the auxiliary workers for making the day a success.

Mrs. Henry announced that the state convention would be held at the Sheraton Hotel in Louisville, July 12-14.

The Auxiliary voted to send a donation to Radio Free Europe. A thank-you card from Mrs. Fleetwood Crouch who has been hospitalized was read.

Hostesses were Mrs. Ned Wilson and Mrs. John L. Williams. Mrs. Ruth Johnson was a guest of the club.

EDWARD T. "NED" BREATHITT

... Wins By Landslide

County Backs All Winners In Hot Campaign Finish

Calloway County voters cast their votes yesterday and selected two west Kentucky men as the Democratic nominees for the state's top offices.

Edward T. "Ned" Breathitt was selected by a margin of over 700 votes as the nominee for governor and Harry Lee Waterfield by a large majority as the nominee for Lt. Governor. Breathitt polled 3,421 in Calloway County to 3,203 for Chandler.

Calloway County Republicans voted with the rest of the state in naming Louie Nunn of Louisville as the GOP candidate, giving him 75 votes to J. N. Cecil's 12.

Owen Billington of Murray won his race for State Senate from the new 31st Senatorial District, defeating Charles J. White of Cadiz. While carried both Trigg and Christian counties, but Billington's majority in Calloway County won him the victory.

The count in the three county district is as follows:

TELEGRAM SENT

The following telegram of congratulations was sent to Edward Breathitt today by Charman Parks, President of the Calloway County Teacher's Association.

"Congratulations on your great victory. I think your County chairman Keith, a former student of mine, did an excellent job in Calloway County and we are proud of him also."

Piano Students Are In Recital

Piano students of Mrs. Neale B. Mason presented a recital before a gathering of families and close friends Saturday evening, May 25, at the Murray Woman's Club House.

Murray young people who performed in the program were Cathy Christopher, Debbie Watson, Sonja Biggerstaff, Dianna Boone, Carolyn Caldwell, Katherine Mason, Sharon Underwood, Susan Nanny, Cathy Perillo, Brenda Richardson, Jane Shoemaker, Donna Hall, Susan Nance, Kim Pennington, and Dianne West. Students participating from Cadiz were Cheryl Moss, Kathy Schroeder, and Kaye Schroeder. Benton was represented by Carolyn Hurley and Sandra Lovett.

Several private students of Prof. Russell Terhune were presented in the recital also. They were Cathy Lovett, Ava Jackson of Mayfield, and his daughter, Becky Terhune.

Special awards for outstanding accomplishments in piano during the past year were presented to Carolyn Hurley and Kaye Schroeder in recognition of their frequent class performances, and to Kim Pennington for showing outstanding progress this year with honorable mention in the various categories going to Sonja Biggerstaff and Kim Pennington for class performances, and Susan Nance and Kaye Schroeder for progress.

Prof. Carl Rogers of the College music faculty acted as judge and named Susan Nance as the outstanding performer of the evening.

Baseball Meeting Set For Saturday

The Murray Baseball Association has called a meeting for Saturday for all boys ages 7-12 who are interested in playing in the Park League.

Boys interested in participating in the league are asked to be at the city park at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, June 1st.

Wayne Wilson Speaker For Lions Club

Wayne Wilson, president of the Murray Real Estate Board, was the speaker last night at the regular meeting of the Murray Lions Club.

Wilson spoke to the club on "Real Estate as a Profession."

The minutes from the last board meeting indicated approval had been made for $100 donation to the Calloway County Mental Health Association and a three-wheeled bicycle bought for Gerald Waidrop.

Lion Rob Ray is to present the club's Arion Award at a College High Chapel program today.

The Murray Club received a plaque during the State Convention last week as the second place winner in the recent District Governor's Contest.

The broom committee reported the most successful broom sale yet with a gross sale of $2,186.61 and a net profit of $614.89. Funds derived from the sale are used to finance the club's sight conservation program. It includes such things as glasses to indigent children and the annual Glaucoma Clinic.

Charles Johnson and George Ligons were each awarded a special pin in recognition of their bringing a new member during membership month.

El Alexander was a guest of Fred Shultz, Lester Nannay was a guest of Joe Pat James and Talmadge Robinson of Camden was a guest of Bryan Tooley.

Letter to the Editor

I want to thank you and your newspaper staff for the excellent coverage you gave "The Stubblefield Story".

Generally, the portrayals of the show found the production to be an exciting experience in local color, and many have requested that it be repeated at Kenlake Amphitheater on a latter date. Congratulations are certainly the order for Composer Shahan and Librettist Lowry.

As a member of the Murray Rotary Club I especially want to thank you as proceeds from the show will allow our organization to grant scholarships to many eligible youths of this county.

Thank you again for your efforts.

Sincerely,

A. W. Simmons, Jr.

Koufax Making Big Effort To Give Los Angeles NL Flag

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press International
Sandy Koufax, who made such a big difference last year, is making it again this year, and that difference could amount to $200,000 for the elated Los Angeles Dodgers.

The San Francisco Giants picked up approximately that sum for appearing in the 1962 World Series, and the Dodgers can count on at least that much and maybe even more if they win the National League pennant this year.

Baseball men generally agree the chief reason the Dodgers did not win last season was because Koufax was forced to the sidelines with a finger ailment in July. Sandy's record was 14-4 and he never won another game.

The hard-throwing 27-year old southpaw has a funny notion about his injury of last year. He figures he owes the Dodgers a pennant.

Shuts Out Braves
Koufax paid another installment Tuesday night when he blanked the Milwaukee Braves, 7-0, on six hits to boost the Dodgers within one game of first place.

Sandy lowered his earned run average to 1.51 in posting his fourth shutout and seventh victory against two losses. That puts him even ahead of last year when he didn't score his seventh victory until May 30. He also had lost two games by then.

Never in any real trouble Tuesday night, Koufax struck out eight and walked two but was locked in a scoreless duel with young Denny Lemaster until Frank Howard unloaded his ninth homer in the seventh inning.

The Dodgers then broke the game open with six more runs in the ninth off relievers Claude Raymond and Dan Schneider. A trio of hits, three walks, a double steal, a balk and an error contributed to the damage.

Reds Beat Giants
Meanwhile the Cincinnati Reds ripped the Giants, 10-6, the St. Louis Cardinals scored an 8-7 victory over the Houston Colts in 10 innings, the Philadelphia Phils defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-1, and the Chicago Cubs downed the New York Mets, 5-2.

In the American League, the first-place Baltimore Orioles won their ninth straight by beating the Kansas City A's, 4-2, the Boston Red Sox walloped the New York Yankees, 11-6, the Detroit Tigers outscored the Los Angeles Angels, 3-1, the Cleveland Indians edged the Chicago White Sox, 3-2, and the Minnesota Twins topped the Washington Senators, 6-3.

Robinson Homers
Frank Robinson drove in three runs for the Reds with a double and a homer and Marty Keough also knocked in three to offset the Dodgers' lead.

Shuts Out Braves
Koufax paid another installment Tuesday night when he blanked the Milwaukee Braves, 7-0, on six hits to boost the Dodgers within one game of first place.

Sandy lowered his earned run average to 1.51 in posting his fourth shutout and seventh victory against two losses. That puts him even ahead of last year when he didn't score his seventh victory until May 30. He also had lost two games by then.

Never in any real trouble Tuesday night, Koufax struck out eight and walked two but was locked in a scoreless duel with young Denny Lemaster until Frank Howard unloaded his ninth homer in the seventh inning.

The Dodgers then broke the game open with six more runs in the ninth off relievers Claude Raymond and Dan Schneider. A trio of hits, three walks, a double steal, a balk and an error contributed to the damage.

Reds Beat Giants
Meanwhile the Cincinnati Reds ripped the Giants, 10-6, the St. Louis Cardinals scored an 8-7 victory over the Houston Colts in 10 innings, the Philadelphia Phils defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-1, and the Chicago Cubs downed the New York Mets, 5-2.

In the American League, the first-place Baltimore Orioles won their ninth straight by beating the Kansas City A's, 4-2, the Boston Red Sox walloped the New York Yankees, 11-6, the Detroit Tigers outscored the Los Angeles Angels, 3-1, the Cleveland Indians edged the Chicago White Sox, 3-2, and the Minnesota Twins topped the Washington Senators, 6-3.

Robinson Homers
Frank Robinson drove in three runs for the Reds with a double and a homer and Marty Keough also knocked in three to offset the Dodgers' lead.

Baseball men generally agree the chief reason the Dodgers did not win last season was because Koufax was forced to the sidelines with a finger ailment in July. Sandy's record was 14-4 and he never won another game.

The hard-throwing 27-year old southpaw has a funny notion about his injury of last year. He figures he owes the Dodgers a pennant.

commissioner blow-for-blow before the courthouse crowds and, at the same time made high-level appeals to college and high school students and professional groups.

Including the time Breathitt spent quietly enlisting the support of local political leaders, he campaigned for the office more than a year.

For Chandler, it was a hard defeat. In 13 previous statewide races, he had lost only once. That was to Alben W. Barkley in a race for the U. S. Senate nomination in 1935. His career, probably one of the most successful in the history of Kentucky politics, had spanned three decades.

Chandler did the same things in this campaign that he did in two previous successful campaigns for governor in 1935 and 1955. He attacked the sales tax as he had in those races and he amused and repaid his courtship audiences. Chandler even sang a few bars of "Gold Mine in the Sky" occasionally.

Unsuccessful This Time

But this time, it didn't work. Now 64 years old, Chandler probably will not run again for public office. The man who wanted to be President of the United States and sought the office on two occasions wound up being defeated in his own state.

Breathitt made more extensive use of television than Chandler and appealed to the young people with whom Chandler could establish no rapport. Breathitt supporters tell the young people voted in a bloc for their candidate.

The young candidate had the energetic backing of Gov. Bert Combs and the current state administration. In Kentucky a governor cannot serve successive terms.

In November, Breathitt will face Louis B. Nunn, a Glasgow attorney who had only token opposition in the Republican primary and won handily. In Kentucky, the Democratic nomination for governor usually is tantamount to victory in the general election.

The victory also was interpreted as a strong vote of confidence in the policies of the Combs administration.

Chandler had promised that his first official action when elected

Bemis Lawrence was nominated for lieutenant governor, Jean L. Auxier for attorney general and James D. Ashland for auditor, all without opposition.

On the Republican side

These include Elmer Best for secretary of state, John H. Howard for superintendent of public instruction, Hugh James for commissioner of agriculture, and H. P. Davidson for clerk of the Court of Appeals. H. Bemis Lawrence was nominated for lieutenant governor, Jean L. Auxier for attorney general and James D. Ashland for auditor, all without opposition.

It became obvious Chandler would lose as soon as the returns began coming in from northern Kentucky and the Bluegrass area, both of which traditionally gave him huge pluralities. But not this time.

Kenton County, which went for Chandler in 1935 by about 3,000 votes and in 1955 by 6,000, went to Breathitt by about 1,300 votes.

Franklin County, in Chandler's corner with a plurality of 1,000 in 1955, went to Breathitt by about 400 votes. Campbell County, yielding 1,000 votes to Chandler in 1955, was worth only 218 Tuesday. Fayette County, worth more than 3,000 in 1955, came through by only 602.

Similarly, counties that were "poor" for Chandler in 1955 were disastrous Tuesday. He lost Jefferson County in 1955 by about 12,000. This was raised to a deficit of 17,500 Tuesday night.

Aids Entire Slate

Breathitt was extremely successful in pulling in his slated candidates for statewide offices. In six of the seven races, the candidate he supported won. Emerson Beauchamp was nominated for treasurer, Robert Matthews for attorney general, Wendell Butler for commissioner of agriculture, Henry Carter for auditor, Drexell Davis for clerk of the Court of Appeals, and Harry Sparks for superintendent of public instruction.

But he could not beat current state treasurer Thelma Stovall in her bid for nomination as secretary of state. Long a thorn in the side of the Combs administration, Mrs. Stovall was the top vote-getter among the secondary candidates.

A Chandler-backed candidate Harry Lee Waterfield, won the nomination for lieutenant governor. But Breathitt did not slate a running mate and said he could work well with either Waterfield or John B.

Facts and Fancies About Fourth of July

By GEORGE H. ECKHARDT
Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper

THE STORY of the small boy rushing into the tower of the State House in Philadelphia, July 4, 1776, and informing the bellman of the passage of the Declaration of Independence, crying, "Ring! Ring!" unfortunately is in a class with Fanny Weem's folk yarn of George Washington and the cherry tree.

In fact, July 4, 1776, was a quiet and solemn day in Philadelphia, the Liberty Bell did not peal forth the message cast into its rim, some 20 years before. "Proclaim Liberty through all the land to all the inhabitants thereof" on that day. This happened on July 8, 1776.

However, the facts regarding the events of what we may well call Independence Week, which began in Philadelphia, Monday, July 1, 1776, were far greater than the fancies of July Fourth orators of later days and writers who added fiction to fact.

JULY 1, 1776, the Continental Congress took up the all important question of Independence. Its sessions were secret. After bitter debate the resolution of Richard Henry Lee of Virginia that "the United Colonies are . . . free and independent States" was adopted on Tuesday, July 2, 1776. This was the great decision, the point of no return. This was the Act of Independence.

The next step was to formulate a document giving to the world the reasons for this bold step. On July 3, 1776, the Congress began debating the drafts largely prepared by Jefferson. Many changes were made during the long sessions of July 3 and 4.

Finally, the form of the Declaration of Independence was agreed upon late in the afternoon of July 4, 1776. There was no signing by the delegates at that time and whatever signing there was consisted of the signature of John Hancock, president of the Congress, attested by Charles Thomson, the secretary.

ACTUALLY, the title of the document we know and cherish—the Declaration of Independence—is somewhat of a misnomer. Independence had been declared on July 2, 1776, and the document we know simply gives the reasons for this act.

After Congress adopted the document, very late on the afternoon of July 4, 1776, it was then that the Liberty Bell rang out its message. The city was in a gay mood and thus the first "Fourth of July" celebration was on July 8, 1776, in Philadelphia.

It was not until July 19, 1776, that the Congress got around to ordering the Declaration engraved on parchment. This was done and on Aug. 2, 1776, the delegates signed the document. This is the document now preserved in Washington.

Strangely enough it is signed by some delegates who were not present on July 4, 1776, and is not signed by some who were. So the Declaration of Independence was not signed on July 4, 1776, but rather on Aug. 7, 1776.

Despite John Adams and all this, the Fourth of July soon came to be recognized as the great American holiday. Late in life, Charles Biddle, who was actually present on July 8, 1776, when the Declaration was read, in his biography fell into the error of dating the event July 4, 1776, so firmly had the date been established in one man's lifetime.

Still A Lot Of The Whiz Left In The Robin Roberts Of Old

By MARTIN LADER
United Press International
There's still a lot of the whiz left in Robin Roberts.

It's a long 13 years since the veteran right-hander led a young Philadelphia team to the National League pennant, and some of the old speed is gone now. But the comeback pitcher of 1962 seems determined to make the Baltimore Orioles the comeback team of 1963.

The Orioles, who finished a disappointing seventh last year after being tabbed as a prime contender for the American League pennant, are taking care to make no mistakes this time around. And Roberts is one of the big reasons they own a bulging 3½-game lead over the second-place New York Yankees today. Roberts, now 36 years old and relying more on craft than speed, registered his fourth straight victory Tuesday night as Baltimore turned back the Kansas City Athletics, 4-2. It was the Orioles' ninth straight win and their 14th in their last 15 games since Roberts touched off the streak May 14.

All In Fifth
Baltimore scored all its runs in the fifth inning when John Orsino sacrificed and scored on Luis Aparicio's double. Jerry Adair followed with an infield hit and Al Smith drove in three runs with his seventh homer.

Roberts, who lost his first four games this year, pitched shutout ball for seven innings but tired in the eighth and needed relief from Dean Stone and Stu Miller. Roberts left immediately after the game for Springfield, Ill., to attend the funeral of his father, who died Sunday.

Yankees Lose
In other American League contests, the Boston Red Sox walloped the Yankees, 11-6, the Minnesota Twins extended their winning streak to eight games by beating the Washington Senators, 6-3, the Cleveland Indians nipped the Chicago White Sox, 3-2, and the Detroit Tigers defeated the Los Angeles Angels, 3-1.

In the National League, the San Francisco Giants had their league lead cut to one game by dropping a 10-6 decision to the Cincinnati Reds while the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Milwaukee Braves, 7-0, the Chicago Cubs topped the New York Mets, 5-2, the Philadelphia Phillies ripped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-1, and the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Houston

SHELF CONTROL A Way To Create More Space

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

WHAT do you do with knickknacks, books, radios, portable TV sets? Shelf them.

It's the answer most favored by young moderns, because shelves put otherwise unused wall space to work. And with space at a premium, as it is in most small homes and apartments, shelves provide a convenient and a decorative solution.

It's one furniture manufacturer have been fast to spot, for any number of new designs seem to be shelf-inspired.

TV On A Shelf

There is, for example, a TV set that's designed to sit on a charming shelf that blends Early American design with modern convenience.

The shelf, authentic in every detail, has a spice chest motif and an open gallery rail shelf for books or bric-a-brac.

Two new clocks, with cabinets that make them tall as Grandfather's, are shelf designs, too.

Behind A Door

One, an Early American model in Colonial nutmeg hardwood finish, hides its shelves behind a decoratively louvered door.

The other, a Danish modern model, has two open shelves

NEW SHELF UNITS that can be combined in a variety of ways join forces to make a high and low arrangement that is used here to house television, books and knickknacks.

for display purposes and a small cabinet compartment beneath them.

One of the most intriguing shelf developments of all is a series of standing units that can be combined in any number of ways so that you can shelf-engineer your own storage space.

You can, for example, combine a few shelf units with a high one. Or you can separate two low shelf units with a single shelf that can serve as a vanity counter.

Desk Shelf

A wide desk shelf is included in one of the five basic units that make up this group. All are metal with tan enamel or walnut woodgrain finish. Shelves can be used in almost any room of the house.

In the kitchen, a desk topped with shelves makes a great planning center and a bookcase for cookbooks.

In the bathroom, shelves serve to store towels and cosmetics.

If you need more space, consider using shelves to supply it. Whether hanging or standing models, they help greatly to solve the storage problem.

TELEVISION SET fits neatly into Early American wall hutch that's designed with an authentic spice chest motif.

SHELVES that are used to divide living and dining areas also provide storage space for china and dining accessories.

Dear Abby . .

Grin And Bear It!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I used to think some of the letters in your column were too ridiculous to be true, until I found myself with a problem that probably appears just as ridiculous. My husband's sister is 58, and looks every day of it. She taught school

Colts, 8-7, in 10 innings.

Collect 15 Hits
The Red Sox slugged five New York pitchers for 15 hits, including two-run homers by Gary Geiger and Lou Clinton. Geiger also collected two singles as he boosted his batting average to .390. Bill Monbouquette gave up home runs to Clete Boyer and Tony Kubek but gained credit for his sixth victory in 10 decisions with ninth-inning help from Dick Radatz.

A two-out three-run homer in the ninth inning by Bob Allison gave the Twins their win after the Senators had tied the score in their half of the ninth with three runs, including a two-run homer by Don Lock. Jim Kaat went the distance for Minnesota and struck out 11 batters to even his record at 4-4.

Ted Abernathy, making his first appearance for the Indians, got Nellie Fox to line into a game-ending double play in the ninth inning to save the victory for starter Jack Kralick and enable Cleveland to snap a five-game losing streak. Max Alvis' double in the sixth inning drove in the winning run.

Mickey Lolich went all the way for Detroit, giving up eight hits and walking only one batter, to register his first major league triumph. The lone Angel run was unearned. Big blow for the Tigers was a two-run homer by Dick McAuliffe in the sixth inning.

for 33 years and never married. This summer she "fell in love" with a widower who must be 60. They will marry in September. She wants a big church wedding, with a white gown and veil, and she's asked my husband to give her away! Now really, Abby! The minister says she is entitled to it. But picture a gray-haired "bride" walking down the aisle on the arm of her brother who is 16 years her junior! We'll be the laughingstock of the community. If we can't talk her out of it, I intend to get a "sick headache" the day of the wedding and stay home. Or am I the one who is crazy?

SISTER-IN-LAW
DEAR SISTER-IN-LAW: Don't be so concerned about what the "community" will think. It's the bride's day. Let her do as she wishes. And out of respect to your husband, take two aspirin and go with him.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of stretch pants.

CHARLIE
DEAR CHARLIE: I think they are more fitting than proper.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please point out the difference between friendliness and familiarity? Many of us strongly object to being called "Honey," "Darling," and "Dearest" by salespeople, waitresses and those who serve the public.

I know they mean it in friendliness, but I consider it undue familiarity. Let's reserve those terms of endearment for our families and special friends. How about it, Sweetie?

both ways, Doll. But it has been my observation that the "public" is more guilty of this type of familiarity than those who serve them.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Betrayed" to continue to accept the pies and sweet smiles of her neighbor, as before. If the relationship of her husband and this neighbor had gone further than it should have, her husband would never have breathed a word of it to her. He no doubt got the brush-off, and is now trying to save his wounded ego.

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 311

When Robert E. Lee broke camp at Fredericksburg, June 3, 1863, for his second attempt to invade the North, his Army of Northern Virginia had been reorganized into three corps of infantry and six brigades of cavalry. I Corps was led by James (Pete) Longstreet; II Corps by Richard Stoddert Ewell; III Corps by Ambrose Powell Hill; the cavalry brigades by James Ewell Brown (Jeb) Stuart. The total manpower at Lee's command was around 80,000 or about 33,000 fewer men than were in Joseph Hooker's Army of the Potomac, Lee's immediate contending force.

Ewell [I] was the replacement in III Corps' command of Thomas Jonathan (Stonewall) Jackson, who had died May 10 of pneumonia—a complication of the wounds Jackson suffered in the battle at Chancellorsville, where Lee reversed Hooker's attack at heavy cost. Ewell was not in that battle; he returned to duty May 23, ten months after his leg was shot off while he was a division commander for Jackson.

Ewell had some 20 years of service as officer in Indian campaigns and the Mexican War behind him when he resigned the Regulars in May 1861 for the Rebels. Commissioned a colonel, C.S.A., immediately, Ewell gained advancement to major general when chosen to lead the II Corps when he recovered from the wound he suffered in the preliminary at Groveton, Aug. 2, 1862, to the Second Battle of Bull Run. Ewell had to be lifted on his horse and strapped to his saddle as his corps [composed of such men as the one at right] led the advance from Fredericksburg.

Ewell naturally was among those attacked by advocates of Lee's infallibility who sought to shift the blame for what happened July 1-3, 1863, from Lee's shoulders. It was claimed that Ewell was unable to make the transition from closely supervised division commander under Jackson to a corps commander under Lee's discretionary orders.

The New EMILIE LORING Follow Your Heart

CHAPTER 28

Will you be my girl? Jill asked. "And I was hoping to be," he said. "Coincidence, isn't it?" "Oh, wonderful!" She moved across the seat so she could take the wheel. "How did you know where I was going?" "You told Denise when you were swimming yesterday, and Dan Holt reported to me."

He drove competently, his hands right and sure on the wheel, his eyes on the road. Jill stole a look at him. This morning he was even better-looking than she had remembered.

There was a long silence between them, but it was a silence without awkwardness. Then she said, "Peter?" "Dan Holt reported to you that I was going to New York?" "He did indeed. I had a hunch I could trust him, so I told him what I suspected was going on at least so far as it concerns you and your safety. Sometimes it's a good idea to have a few reserves to draw on, someone on your side. And anyhow, I can't keep an eye on you all the time. He'll take over when I'm not around. Watchdog, bodyguard, or what have you."

"Don't you?" he said in his quiet voice.

Somewhat the gaily went out of the morning. "Peter — what did you mean about locking my door?" "He answered 'the alarm in his voice. Just a precaution," he said lightly. "Probably not in the least necessary, but it can't do any harm. Anyhow, it won't be long now."

"Oh." After a pause she asked, "Are you sure?" "Almost." He concentrated on passing a car and said casually, "I told you it was an interesting talk. Holt told me that you aren't engaged to marry Chester Bennett."

"Of course I'm not," Jill said indignantly. "I'm not engaged to anyone." Dan, she thought, "I shouldn't have said that as though—as though I thought he'd care. I don't see now that came into the conversation."

"Don't you?" His laughing eyes met hers with a light in them that made her heart beat faster. "Holt also said—let the best man win."

"Oh." For the life of her Jill couldn't have added another word.

"Where are you staying?" he asked, his voice impersonal again.

She named a hotel. "How about you?" "I'll go to my apartment. I want to pick up some things,
